Almaty Technological University

Short description:

Almaty Technological University was founded in 1957, and is a non-profit organization. This university offers courses and programmes which are officially recognized higher education degrees elsewhere in the world. Even though this institution has a selective admission policy based on entrance examinations, international students who wish to apply are qualified to enrol.

Let's introduce...

Matayeva describes herself as being ambitious, inventive, responsible, but also a little bit of an anxious person sometimes. In Kazakhstan she studied tourism, and last year she had the opportunity to participate at the ICM exchange program. She described her exchange experience as 'a big experience for my future'.

She always wanted to get a chance to develop herself and study with another program. Thanks to ICM she had the experience of her lifetime. During her exchange she got to meet friends from other countries which she describes as very kind and helpful. During her stay in Hungary and while studying at METU, she improved her English, learned a lot about the Hungarian culture, and specialized in her subject.

"I'll never forget, I have a lot of memories with this city."
