Let's introduce...

Professor Rabiga Mukatova teaches at the Kazakh University of Technology and Business, in Astana, Kazakhstan. She describes herself as being creative, hardworking, responsible, someone who takes initiative, and a purposeful professional. Her main motivation for doing the ICM at METU was to create international contacts, to deepen her knowledge and, to visit Hungary, its people and culture.

Professor Mukatova describes her international experience as the following: “It was a brilliant experience to participate in this program. I met new people, I made new friends. I received valuable information about the development of the teaching process at the university.”

While here at METU, she also performed and attended different activities. A few of them are: giving lectures for students, visiting classes of foreign professors, getting familiar with the structure of the university and the learning process, going on excursions, and so on. You can take a look at her material here.

For professors who are considering doing the ICM project, she gives them the following message: “This is a good chance for personal development, to gain valuable experience. Take this chance.”
